

Deception Vol 1 A Promise Made A Promise Broken Turbulent Desire Series English Edition By Ericka Santana

PROLOGUE'JC'The next day when I woke up, she wasn't inside the blanket fort anymore. I took my blanket and went to look for her. First I looked in the kitchen, then the bathroom, then her bedroom, but she was nowhere to be found. I got scared and started to cry out for her desperately. "Mama, Mama, where are you?" I sobbed, hugging my blanket and pressing it against my chest. "Jean Carlo, your uncle is taking you with him, he'll bring you back in a couple of days," my father said to me. "Mama! Where is Mama? I want my Mama!" I cried inconsolably. "Stop crying like a girl, Jean Carlo, she is not yours, she is mine!" my father shouted at me. I was scared of him when he did that; his face made me think of a monster, ready to eat me. Now the memory returns to haunt me, infuriating me. I shouted aloud to the empty room then crawled to the coffee table, where several lines of cocaine were ready to be snorted in hopes it would ease my pain. One snort wasn't enough, of course. I could not stop until it was all gone. After three days of trying to numb the pain with alcohol and drugs, I fell asleep on the floor, naked and surrounded by trash, like a vagrant. When I awoke I had no notion of time. Had it been hours? Or days? I had no idea. I sat on the floor, leaning against the sofa for support, and held my head with both hands. As I fought the waves of nostalgia that came over me, I remembered the accident. Once again, I was overcome with guilt for the time I had wasted, time taking drugs and fucking women—time I could have spent with my mother. "I am sorry, Mama, for making your last days of your life so miserable," I said quietly, my voice trembling. Then I remembered Skylar. Oh, my God! What have I done? Flashes came back to me—the things I'd said, the way I'd behaved. "No!" I shouted. I pulled myself up from the floor, ignoring the agonizing pain in my head and a sudden burning on my back. I groped for my clothes, but the only thing I found was my pants. "Where the fuck are my clothes?" I muttered. Fuck the clothes—I need to go to her! DECEPTION VOL.1 NOW AVAILABLE!!!
